PROJECTS:

Twitter   Python, Alembic, SQLAlchemy, Flask, ReactJS, Redux   Github | Live
Full stack project that demonstrates full mastery of web development skills in conjunction with backend frameworks and frontend application state management architectures.

- Implemented a SQL database using SQLAlchemy to store and manage application data.
- Utilized ReactJS with Redux to create a swift and seamless user interface.
- Designed a RESTful backend server to allow user info, posts, and comments to be stored persistently in an online database.
- Deployed the application on a web server for public access and use.
- Leveraged Github's branches to incrementally push up finished CRUD features thus organizing workflow and minimizing time spent debugging.

WindBnb   Javascript, Express, Sequelize, ReactJS, Redux   Github | Live
WindBnb is a full stack project that utilizes Express, Sequelize, and React with Redux to deliver a polished, fully functioning clone of AirBnb.

- Planned and produced database relationship diagrams using Dbdiagram.io to visualize and coordinate data properly and efficiently in the backend.
- Took advantage of React to structure WindBnb's features into smaller reusable components of code resulting in organized and readable code.
- Utilized Express and Sequelize for backend routing and database communication resulting in efficient and stable data retrieval and navigation throughout the web application.
- Adhered to Scrum and Agile methodologies to create structured and productive sprints throughout the lifecycle of the project.
